Part-1: Copyright Transfer Form

The undersigned hereby assigns all copyright rights in and to the above paper to CLAWAR Association Ltd. (CLAWAR). The undersigned hereby represents and warrants that the paper is original and that he/she is the author of the paper, except for material such as text passages, figures, and data that clearly identify the original source, with permission notices from the copyright owners where required. The undersigned represents that he/she has the power and authority to make and execute this assignment.

- Authors/employers may reproduce or authorize others to reproduce the above paper, material extracted verbatim from the above paper, or derivative papers for the author's personal use or for company use provided that the source and CLAWAR copyright notice are indicated, that the copies are not used in any way that implies CLAWAR endorsement of a product or service of an employer, and that the copies themselves are not offered for sale.

- In the case of work contained in the paper performed under a U.S. Government contract or grant, CLAWAR recognizes that the U.S. Government has royalty free permission to reproduce all or portions of the above paper, and to authorize others to do so, for official U.S. Government purposes only, if the contract/grant so requires. Notes and Information for Authors and their Employers

1. In connection with its publishing activities, it is the formal policy of CLAWAR to own the copyrights to all copyrightable material in its technical publications and to the individual contributions contained therein, in order to protect the interests of CLAWAR, its authors and their employers, and, at the same time, to facilitate the appropriate reuse of this material by others. CLAWAR distributes its technical publications throughout the world and does so in all formats, and through any medium of communication now known or later conceived. It also abstracts and may translate its publications, and articles contained therein, for inclusion in various compendiums and similar publications, etc. When an article is submitted to CLAWAR for publication, CLAWAR understands that its acceptance of the article implies that CLAWAR has the rights to do all of the things it normally does with such an article.
2. CLAWAR must assume that material presented at its meetings or submitted for publication is properly available for general dissemination to the audiences these activities are organized to serve. It is the responsibility of the authors, not CLAWAR, to determine whether disclosure of their material requires the prior consent of other parties and, if so, to obtain it. Furthermore, if an author uses within his/her article material that has been previously published and/or is copyrighted by another party, CLAWAR must assume that permission has been obtained for such use and that any required credit lines, copyright notices, etc., are duly noted.
3. In exercising its rights under copyright, CLAWAR will make all reasonable efforts to act in the interests of the authors and employers as well as in its own interest. In handling third-party requests for permission to reprint or republish CLAWAR paper, CLAWAR requires that (i) the consent of the first named author be sought as a condition in granting republication (of a full paper) to others; and (ii) the consent of the employer be obtained as a condition in granting permission to others to reuse all or portions of a paper for promotion or marketing purposes.
4. If you are employed and you prepared your paper as a part of your job, the rights to your paper may rest initially with your employer. In that case, when you sign the copyright transfer form, we assume you are authorized to do so by your employer and that your employer has consented to all the terms and conditions of this form. If not, it should be signed by someone so authorized.
